in the UK:

The recent EU Referendum on 23rd June 2016 that resulted in a vote by the British public to leave the European Union (now commonly known as the UK vote to Brexit) has resulted in concern by many EU nationals and their families living in the UK as to what will happen to their right to live and work in the UK as Brexit is implemented. For an EEA national to remain in the UK under the transposition of EU Directive 2004/38/EC you must be in 'lawful and continuous residence' in the UK and, to qualify for indefinite leave to remain, for 5 years. At some point in the future the protection of the right to indefinite leave to remain will likely have a cutoff date imposed. WHAT IF for some reason your residency doesn't comply with the requirements 100% - meaning your and your family's lawful and continuous residence is in question during what you thought was your 5 year qualifying period? Is it not better to know NOW so you are able to take appropriate action to correct going forward? OR WHAT IF you may be entitled to prove your qualified person status during your residency under several different categories and you pick one that causes your application to be rejected, whereas choosing the other would have made your application successful? This book will give you better insight into what needs to be proved so you can make the right choices before it is too late!
