Ana Maria Daza-Clark : International Investment Law and Water Resources Management (Nijhoff International Investment Law) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised International Investment Law and Water Resources Management (Nijhoff International Investment Law):

Hydrological variability, increasing competition for water, and the need for regulatory flexibility may increasingly compel governments to adopt measures with significant economic impact on foreign investment. In International Investment Law and Water Resources Management, Daza-Clark offers an appraisal of indirect expropriation, revisiting the well-known doctrine of the police power. Through the lens of international investment law, the author explores a framework that assesses the legitimate exercise of police power with particular attention to the special nature of water resources.

About the Author Ana Maria Daza-Clark (PhD) is a teaching fellow in international economic law at the University of Edinburgh. She worked as a legal counsel and legal director for the utilities regulatory system in Bolivia and specialises in economic regulation, international investment law and water governance.
