Eric De Brabandere : Investment Treaty Arbitration as Public International Law: Procedural Aspects and Implications (Cambridge Studies in International and Comparative Law) before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Investment Treaty Arbitration as Public International Law: Procedural Aspects and Implications (Cambridge Studies in International and Comparative Law):

Investment treaty arbitration is fast becoming one of the most common methods of dispute settlement in international law. Despite having ancient roots, tensions remain between the private interests in international investment relations and the public international law features of the arbitral procedure. This book, which presents an account of investment treaty arbitration as a part of public international law - as opposed to commercial law - provides an important contribution to the literature on this subject. Eric De Brabandere examines the procedural implications of conceiving of investment treaty arbitration in such a way, with regard to issues such as the principles of confidentiality and privacy, and remedies. The author demonstrates how the public international law character of investment treaty arbitration derives from, and has impacted upon, the dispute settlement procedure.

"... this is a useful book which sheds light on a number of disputed issues in international investment law." Christoph Schreuer, Netherlands International Law "... the book is interesting, easy to read and thought-provoking, leaving one with an ... appetite for more." Marcin Menkes, Journal of International Banking Law and Regulation About the Author Eric De Brabandere is Associate Professor of International Law at the Grotius Centre for International Legal Studies at Leiden University, and a Member of the Brussels Bar.
