Steven A. Diaz, Lawrence F. Hughes : Transit Law: Cases and Materials, 2016-2017 Supplement before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Transit Law: Cases and Materials, 2016-2017 Supplement:

Transit Law: Cases and Materials is a law school casebook designed to provide students with those cases and materials most relevant to the practice of law related to the provision of public transportation services. The first part of the casebook covers basic concepts related to the regulation of public transportation. The second part explores some of the constitutional constraints imposed on public transportation operations. The final part delves into the practices of the Federal Transit Administration, an essential component of contemporary transit law given the dominance of federal involvement in the funding of public transportation systems.

About the Author STEVEN A. DIAZ is adjunct professor of transit law at University of Pittsburgh School of Law. He is former chief counsel of the Federal Transit Administration. LAWRENCE F. HUGHES received his JD and LLM in Taxation from New York Law School, and his MS in Transportation Planning and Engineering from Polytechnic University (now New York University Polytechnic School of Engineering). His articles related to public transportation and its history have been published in Transportation Law Journal and Motor Coach Age.
